The rising cost of healthcare is a growing crisis that poses a major threat to our economy, our financial security and our individual health. For too long, Americans have been paying too much and not getting enough in return. We know the problems; now we need to put a bold stake into the ground to fuel the best ideas, innovations and practical policy solutions. The goal: accelerate adoption of value-based payment models and increase patient engagement to slow or reverse the trajectory of healthcare costs.

West Health, a suite of nonprofit, nonpartisan organizations focused on applied medical research, policy, advocacy and philanthropy, is convening a one-day Innovation Summit in the nation's capital focused on solving America's healthcare cost crisis. The Summit will bring together many sectors of healthcare including policymakers, healthcare providers, health systems, economists, researchers, insurers, government, industry and advocacy groups and patients. We hope you can join us and be a part of it.

Admission is free, but registration is required. For more information and to register visit hcidc.org. Once you are registered, you will receive updates on speakers, topics and special announcements.
