NEXT STEPS

Setting the Stage

- A learning Organization - Today is not about what's wrong but about innovation!!!
- Trauma Informed – Means the use of trauma concepts learned from the treatment realm to inform supervision and org culture. It is strength based and not deficit-based approach.
- Trauma is a Normal Response to abnormal situations
- Our goal is to build a stress/trauma resilient culture

Questions to Contemplate

The pass few years have been extremely stressful culminating with the recent pandemic (true or false?) !

At work where does most employee stress originate from (Personal, client work or organization)?

What stressors does your organization often focus on with your employees? (Personal, client work, neither)?

SOURCES OF STRESS

Personal

Clients (Compassion)

Organization

CURRENT ORGANIZATIONAL STRESSORS

Economic scarcity, recession, widening gap between demand and resources, massive tech changes, increasing compliance/regulatory requirements, Pandemic, Pandemic, Pandemic, did I say Pandemic

Leads to deep uncertainty in organizations, affecting individuals at all levels of the organization

Combo of uncertainty with likelihood of change is one of the biggest stressors of all

ORGANIZATIONS ARE PEOPLE TOO

Can be traumatized

- Chronic stress
- Acute stress

Resist change (even positive change)

Resist new leadership

Become trauma-organized

Trauma-organized Culture

Participatory processes break down

Decisions become oversimplified

- May create more problems than they solve

Interpersonal conflicts erupt
and aren't dealt with

Mission is lost

Trauma-organized Culture (cont.)

LOSS OF SENSE OF FUTURE

STRATEGY MAKES
WAY FOR URGENCY

CRISIS MODE

US/THEM
MENTALITY

COMMUNICATION

Organizational Stress Accumulates

So, What Can Be Done?

- Individuals and cultures tend to do what they know is safe (not change) or they become hypervigilant - reactive.
- Do something different
 - Immunize the organization against stress
 - Build a trauma resilient Organization

Sanctuary Model – Something Different

Sanctuary, developed by psychiatrist Sandra Bloom, is an idea that healing from trauma, stress, and adversity requires creating an environment that promotes healing.

Remember the very things that help us are those things most affected by chronic stress

Relationships
Hope
Humor
Healing activities or ritual

Sanctuary Model

- The Sanctuary Model is an organizational approach to culture change.
 - The primary goal of creating this culture change is to promote safety for all.
 - The model provides a framework that any organization can utilize to create a work environment that will produce:
 - better outcomes for the clients served
 - while also realizing cost savings to agencies through reduce turnover, absenteeism, increased staff retention, lower training cost.

Sanctuary Model's Seven Commitments

1. Nonviolence: being physically, emotionally, socially, and morally safe
2. Emotional Intelligence: managing feelings to prevent harm to self or others
3. Social Learning: respecting and sharing the ideas of the team
4. Open Communication: saying what you mean but not being mean when you say it
5. Social Responsibility: everyone contributes to the organizational culture
6. Democracy: everyone has a say
7. Growth and Change: becoming comfortable with change while always finding hope

Commitment to Safety

Being physically,
emotionally, socially,
and morally safe

A commitment to safety works to ensure that all staff safe in all aspects of their relationship with the organization.

- Are interagency communications appropriate, emails phone calls, etc.
- Do staff feel treated with respect
- Supervision
- Interactions with colleagues
- In their daily interactions with beneficiaries

Commitment to Open Communications

Saying what you mean but not being mean when you say it

This is not just about being able to openly communicate it is also about how we communicate.

- Does leadership listen
- Can staff truly express their opinions, ideas, etc. in meetings without repercussions
- What happens when they do
- Transparency

Commitment to Democracy Everyone has a say

The key to this commitment is that staff feel and have a say in decisions that will affect them in their job.

- Sometimes referred to a flattening the hierarchy
- Are staff involved in agency policy and procedure development
- Are staff represented on agency committees and management groups
- Are staff asked about insurance options
